

Here we go again. The FCC and Congress stripped away the rights of United States citizens with the Satellite Home Viewers Act and now want to extend the same type of restrictions to satellite radio, all in the name of localization. If local broadcasters, whether they be television or radio, can't compete fairly for their audience then they deserve to go out of business. Congress and the FCC should not be in the business of protecting the market share of a particular industry, no matter how much lobbying they do or how big their political donations.
